From The Headteachers

Book Week

The children have enjoyed a wonderful few days in school celebrating book week. We have had many visits from authors, storytellers and of course our lovely reading dog, Hero. It has been fantastic to see so many children walking around the school with books in their hands, showing their love of reading. We would like to thank Mrs Stevens-Cox for all of her hard work organising the week's events -- especially with her efforts arranging visits from authors who have written books that children have read in class.

Book Week Assembly

The playgrounds this morning were filled with characters and mythical beasts from across all genres. We even had a surgeon from a medical text book written by his doctor father! We would like to thank all of the parents for their huge effort and time given, creating such magnificent costumes. The children have revelled in being their favourite character for a day. We all enjoyed a fantastic assembly this morning with a parade from each class. Please visit our Twitter feed to see photos.

Parent Survey

Many thanks to all of you who have already completed and returned the Parent Survey. If you have not yet done so, please do take this opportunity to express your views about our school. Further copies are available from

Date for your Diary

Lee Slater will be hosting another Parenting Workshop on Tuesday 26th March at 9am. This work shop will focus on 'The Hidden Shame of Parenting'. All welcome.

Parking outside school

You may have seen around the school entrances our warning signs requesting you not to park in certain areas for safety reasons. Unfortunately these signs have been moved to enable parents to park. Please do not move them as they have been placed to keep the children safe when travelling to and from school.

Sickness in School

Unfortunately over the past few weeks we have had a number children off sick with upset tummies and sickness. If your child has a bout of sickness which causes vomiting they will need to be absent from school for 24 hours after the last episode of sickness. If they also suffer with diarrhoea the period of absence is 48 hours following the last episode. Hand washing is very important and children are reminded to wash their hands with soap and water regularly throughout the day.
